Dear Mr Reed:

Your letter of February 28th addressed to the Dearborn Publishing Company was referred to the writer, who was the author of the articles in which you are interested. The Dearborn Publishing Company, as you probably know, quit business more than two years ago.

I am sending you the last five of the articles on the assassination. The first ^{two} deals with the plot itself. If you are interested particularly in those, I can have them for you within a week or two from a friend of mine, who has a complete set. My own set is in the old bound volumes of the Dearborn Independent.

I would be delighted to have a copy of the pamphlet you are preparing dealing with the subject.

When you are through with these articles I would be glad to have them returned, as it may help me comply with some other requests in the future.

Very truly yours,

FORD MOTOR COMPANY
