Dear Mr Boggs:

You may remember that I spent a very pleasant evening with you about four years ago in connection with your knowledge of the assassination of Lincoln.

I have finally written a series of articles for the Dearborn Independent, copies of which I am sending you under separate cover. I am now preparing an additional series and expect to use your story.

I understand that you are ill at the present time but trust it is nothing serious. With best wishes, I am

Very truly yours
