

John N. Jones, Dry Goods Merchant, Hennessey. While George was in Hennessey Mr.            was postmaster. I succeeded him as postmaster, but never heard of any remittances made to D. E. George and do not believe any were ever made. I was not intimate with George and no one else here was. George quoted Shakespeare quite often when drunk and was considered better informed on this  than most of us.