

The Disadvantage of Looking Like Booth.

From the Boston Advertiser, April 22.

James L. Chapman, son of Sheriff Chapman of Pittsfield, Mass., bears so strong a resemblance to the assassin Booth that he was stopped three times while traveling on Wednesday, and made to establish his identity.

New York Daily Tribune
Monday, April 24, 1865
page 4 column 6