Gentlemen:-

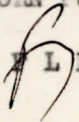

Did you ever have a policy holder by the name of David E George? This chap committed suicide in Enid, Oklahoma in 1903, and claimed before his death that he was John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of Abraham Lincoln.

While the proof we have gathered shows this could not be true, we are nevertheless interested in getting all the information we can about his life. In a will found among his effects, he bequeathed the money that might be collected from an insurance policy of $3000 which he claimed to hold in the Knights of Pythias, Lodge #70, Dallas. The writer could not learn that he had ever been a member there, but thought your records might be extensive enough to advise whether a party by this name ever held an insurance policy. If he did, it undoubtedly lapsed.

Any information you can give us will be deeply appreciated.

Very truly yours
